BOUGHT HER OWN STATUE

Broken by a Servant. Mended by an Artist and Purchasced by Its Owner.

There was grief in a south side household one day when a careless servant allowed a valuable piece of statuary to fall and break in a dozen pieces. The girl had a good cry and offered to pay for the marble, but this was out of the question. The man servant, who was also coachman and landscape garner, was instructed to take the fragmen of the art treasure and dispose of them. It happened that he knew a thing or two. In stead of dumping the pieces into an ash barrel he took them to a repair shop, where they were carefully glued together by an expert workman. When the job was com-pleted the servant took the marble to a dealer in antiquities and objects of art.

THE FAIR SEX IN THE SADDLE.

Various Sorts of Women and How They Look on Wheels. (American Wheelman.)

There is a girl who sits unsteadily on her saddle and wobbles from her waist up like a badly made blancmange.

There is the girl who leans far forward in imitation of the "scorcher," and fondly im-agines she looks professional and is gaining speed steadily in that position.

There is the girl who will ride on a low-bung saddle and whose knees punch the air as she rides.

There is the girl who rides wearing a wor ried look, seeing neither to the right nor to the left. She bows not to her mother, nor to her father, nor yet to the stranger within

There is the big fat woman, looking as if she had been split on her wheel and had "run over" the sides of it. She rides to reduce her flesh. There is the scrawny and scraggy girl, built on the agricultural plan of a hatrack, riding to gain a little needed available.

There is the girl who grasps the handle ars with a clutch of death and wouldn't let hem go for all the gold of Indies or of Or. them go for all the gold of Indies or of Or. There is the girl who rides jauntily erect and steadily on a high saddle, guiding her wheel with one hand and the other hand on the hip-pocket of her little bloomerloom. There is the girl who rides, inwardly loathing it, because she thinks it's swagger to wheel; there's another who rides to prove that there is nothing in this fin de siecle age she can't do. There's the new woman, who rides to show she is emancipated. There's the girl who rides for the sake of her suit, and the girl who rides because her sweetheart wants her to. There's the rich girl who rides because she has found a new toy to spend her money on, and there's the poor girl who rides because she wants to do so her rich girls do.

DOG COLLARS

Gold and Precious Gems Often Used in Their Decorations. 'I can assure you that you have not been misinformed as to gold and precious stones being used to decorate dogs' collars," said one of the best known dealers in such articles to a New York News reporter, "but the craze is far more prevalent in France, Russia and England than it is here. "Not many weeks ago I supplied to the special order of an English lady a dog collar that cost 50 guineas. It was a chain colwith a gold bell to hang in front. French ladies are very fond of watch-dog collars, a small gold watch being let into the front of the collar, and I have made several of these But in scores of cases I supply beautifully made collars, with name plates of solid gold, and often enough with gold 'bosses' as well. Nearly all of the collars of this drawing room poorties, and in most cases the dogs do not belong to men, though the latter order and pay for the collars as "A fashion has lately had great vogue in France of putting tiny bracelets round the forclegs of poodles, and I have seen even diamonds set into these circlets. At the same time in my own stock I have lots of dog collars ranging in price from $15 to $100. The most remarkable collar I have ever made was to the order of a gentleman from South Africa. It consis nuggets of gold and an uncut diamond, which he supplied, and it was given to a wellknown lady as a present."
